

Micah Poor

Boston, MA – Open to Remote & Relocation

Social media strategist and content producer with 10+ years using performance data to shape content, cadence, and platform strategy across higher education, retail, and community work. Runs national-page publishing for Walmart's 32M-follower brand page and sets content standards guiding its 4,800-store social network, adapting content by platform and refining strategy from engagement data. Six years in higher-education communications: faculty research podcasts, public-radio distribution, and multimedia for academic audiences.

EXPERIENCE

Creative Producer — Walmart (via icreatives) Mar 2022 – Present

- Curate and write weekly posts for Walmart's national social channels, tailoring copy, format, and selection to each platform's audience; on Facebook, 60% of selected posts exceeded 1M organic impressions, with a top post at 27.3M and 830K total engagements across the set.
- Track store-level and national performance in Sprinklr to identify what's working by product, theme, and timing, then adjust brief topics, post selection, and launch timing, including moving key seasonal briefs earlier based on data showing early launches outperform.
- Set the editorial standards and publishing priorities governing Walmart's network of 4,800+ store-run social pages, authoring the briefs and templates that direct non-specialist associates and sit behind 180,000+ published posts, then surfacing the strongest store content to the national channel.

Associate Director — Bee Balm Arkansas Aug 2023 – Sep 2024 (volunteer)

- Grew Bee Balm's Instagram following 30x, from 50 to 1,500+, for an early-stage literary nonprofit through events, community programming, and podcast content.
- Co-designed and coordinated a 28-event annual programming calendar across Revision Nights, Drafting Nights, and quarterly Open Mics, engaging 400+ poets and writers across the Arkansas literary community.
- Produced digital storytelling and content for Bee Balm Presents podcast and live programming, helping turn a volunteer-led literary project into a consistent public-facing community presence.

Social Media Videographer — Walmart (via icreatives) Mar 2021 – Mar 2022

- Produced and edited 38 associate-led YouTube videos across unboxing, how-to, product-review, and FAQ formats on micro-budgets (~$100 per episode), all without paid media support; public view counts reached 182K, with five videos topping 100K and 29 surpassing 10K.
- Piloted Walmart's Associate Live Shopping Streams, selecting the technology, designing the segment format, and producing the first 10 streams before handing the program off to scale; the series remains active.

- Packaged associate-led video for social distribution, writing the titles, descriptions, captions, and thumbnails that made low-budget shoots read as platform-native content.
- Produced motion graphics and animated explainers in After Effects to strengthen short-form social video, using typography, brand systems, and data-driven visuals to make institutional content clearer and more native to the feed.

Assistant Audio Producer & Editor — University of Arkansas

Apr 2019 – Mar 2021

- Collaborated with faculty and staff on Short Talks from the Hill, a faculty research podcast distributed on KUAF public radio and YouTube, shaping research topics and recorded interviews into clearer narrative arcs for non-specialist audiences.
- Delivered broadcast-standard post-production in Pro Tools and Adobe Audition, including EQ, compression, and noise reduction, meeting public-radio broadcast specifications across every episode for distribution on KUAF and YouTube.

Multimedia Production Assistant — Walton College, U of A

Feb 2015 – Apr 2019

- Produced digital media for faculty, staff, and students across video, motion graphics, podcasts, instructional content, and live shoots, handling production end to end with accessibility built in through captions and transcripts for classroom, web, and social distribution.
